

Professional Continuous Development (CPD) workshop Environmental and Sustainable Design

The Department of architecture, The Chinese University of Hong Kong is organizing a number of workshops related to the captioned topic in the coming academic year (2004-2005). They are designed for Professionals working in the field wishing to learn more about the subject. The workshops, part of our MSc in Environmental and Sustainable Design Programmes, are now available to working professionals as non-degree CPD training. Participants who have completed the workshop and all assignments to a good level of achievement will be awarded a Certificate of Merit. Professional with this certificate(s) may be offered exemption to courses of the MSc and Postgrad Dip programme if they subsequently wish to enroll formally.

Green Architecture

Professor Brenda Vale Cole, University of Auckland, New Zealand

12 Mar to 20 Mar 2005

This course first introduces the background and development of green and sustainable development. It then examines the environmental impact of building activities on the eco-system through a number of more established environmental concepts (for example, embodied energy, carbon dioxide emission, energy life cycle assessment, environmental impact assessment). Tools and methods for assessing building's environmental impact will be critically evaluated and applied through case studies.
