Clifford Chun-Fai Wong Prize in Housing Design

The Clifford Chun-Fai Wong Prize in Housing Design, awarded to the best project on multi-family or multi-unit housing design, was established in 1995 by Professor Nelson Chen to honour his late partner and father-in-law.

This prize was created to help re-establish the essential role of architects in society to provide not only the fundamental needs of human shelter but to meet the challenge of designing creative solutions for improving living environments.

A parallel prize has been awarded at the Harvard Design School since 1990.

Award
HK$10,000 and certificate
Honourable mentions may also be awarded

Eligibility
BSSc in Architectural Studies (Year 2-4) and MArch students who have completed a multi-family or multi-unit housing design project.

Deadline
5 May 2016 (Thursday)

Procedures
Submit an application form with a design statement (max. 250 words) to the General Office on or before the deadline. More information is available on the School website’s scholarships section.

For enquiries, please contact Ms Isabel Wong at 3943 6586 or isabelwong@cuhk.edu.hk.